Peninsula Players company members present a creatively staged reading of Stephen J. Miller's stage adaptation of "My Ántonia," directed by Joe Foust, with set and props by Sarah Ross, and performed by Sean and Linda Fortunato.

Fri, Jan 22, 7:00 – 9:00pm. Landscape as Home Place in Willa Cather's "My Ántonia." Crossroads at Big Creek, 2041 Michigan St, Sturgeon Bay. University of Nebraska English Professor and Willa Cather scholar Susan Maher offers The Big Read's keynote address. Maher will discuss the powerful connection people have to the lands that surround them, particularly as reflected in "My Ántonia." Professor Maher currently serves as vice president on the executive board of the Willa Cather Foundation. A commissioned artwork depicting the woman Ántonia was based upon will be unveiled. Sponsored by the Door County Land Trust.

Sat, Jan 23, 2:00 – 4:00pm, 7:00 – 9:00pm. Film Screening: "My Ántonia." Third Avenue Playhouse, Sturgeon Bay. Screening of the 1995 USA Network film starring Neil Patrick Harris, Jason Robards, Eva Marie Saint, and the effervescent Elina Löwensohn as Ántonia.

Thu, Jan 28, 2:00 – 3:30pm. Plants of the Plains; Posies of the Prairies. Crossroads at Big Creek, 2041 Michigan St, Sturgeon Bay. This PowerPoint presentation will discuss the ecological significance of prairie plants including images of some of the characteristic flowers of Nebraska.

Thu, Jan 28, 6:30 – 8:30pm. Door County Library / Peninsula Genealogical Society - Trace Your Pioneer Ancestors. Door County Library, 107 South 4th Ave., Sturgeon Bay. The characters of Ántonia and her family are based on real people. The Sadilek family traveled from Bohemia to settle on the plains of Nebraska in 1880. The Peninsula Genealogical Society will hold a workshop in the Door County Library on tracing your pioneer ancestors. Members will illustrate the paths their own families traveled, and there will be a chance to learn about the many resources available in the library for both beginning and experienced genealogy researchers.
